for it to work.

Here is the article that highlights this:

>Actually, what we might consider doing is to get the multi-national corporations OUT of our existing government.

I'm afraid that we've allowed our precious way of life to be seriously compromised by corporate control of Washington, and by our own greedy appetites for all that corporate product/filth.

The idea that freedom of speech, as guaranteed for individuals in the Constitution, is used as an excuse for multinationals to dominate proceedings in Washington is patently absurd. And it will probably further ensure the deterioration of political and social conditions in this country...
