All the distortion needs to come from the pedal for the best tone.
Counterintuitive, since my favorite sound is my Hiwatt cranked, but very true. When dialed in, thi process sounds terrific with any two amps

I have ever heard. I've tried it with 2 different Hiwatts, a THD Univalve, and a JCM2000 Marshall, in different combinations, and all of them did very well.

Interesting, but the Barber Small Fry, which I usually love, does not give enough extra harmonics to really work well with the TZF.

That Savage sounds nice. Now I will have to try one...

DCI wasn't referring to using it across the 2-buss, or even on mixdown, necessarily - I was referring to the channel comps in an SSL desk... you can flatten (or maybe I should say "splatten" LOL) out a snare pretty good with those. I was just thinking of tracking kick & snare with the

DVC with the compressors engaged & see how that sounded.

I remember Fletcher once saying that SSL used dbx VCA's in compressors for the 4000-series consoles, but I've never heard a dbx compressor act like those. In fact, it's easy to take that "splat" too far and end up with a snare that sounds like you're just hitting a piece of notebook paper.

a diode ->I, melted right = off of the board. Any one know what this is? I can't get a picture just = yet up on the net but I'll try and describe it.

It's appx. 3/4" by 1/2" by 1/4" thick, has 4 pins on the = bottom which solder to the cuicut board, dark grey colored and is coded:

-->| RS*202L
RU A 90=20
+ AC -

Anyone of you electronics wizards know where the heck I = can find one of these?

You guys are great,
Thanks
Rich

PS. By the way I broke down and got a Myspace site now. =
Check it out.
